Nothing by Darryl Gregory

Mold clay to make a pot, and find in the space where there is nothing that the usefulness of the clay pot lies. Cut out doors and windows to make a room, but it is in the space where there is nothing that the potential of the room lies. And so, Benefit may be derived from something, but it is in nothing that we find creation.

A House In Bali words/music by Lisa Karrer July '96 - June '98

He washes his shirt in the bath
Flute sounding down by the river
Figures like small sails floating in the rice paddy
Black velvet butterflies and baby papayas
The Gekko accompanies the flute

Cool calm mornings in a house in Bali
Black rice pudding in a house in Bali

Butter yellow trumpet flowers strain towards the bee
Birds coo in the coconut
And the snake sheds her skin in the bush

Gekkos singing in a house in Bali
Snake skins hanging in a house in Bali

He's asleep on the porch
The papaya is ripening
Sun setting on the rice paddy
Volcano is smoky and pink

Listen to the frogs in a house in Bali
Night sky glitters in a house in Bali
